

Kondinin Lake

Kondinin has a large salt lake 5 kms west of the town (covering 1500 hectares) and after sufficient rain, there is an abundance of birdlife as well as ski and sail boat activities.

Heritage shops

Many original buildings can be found including West's shops built in the 20's. The shops have replica signs reproduced for the Centenary of Settlement celebrations held in 2010 and now house a beautician, hairdresser and two second hand shops.

Annual art exhibition

A prestigious 'Kondinin Art Prize' including a sculpture division is held annually in the Town Hall during October.

Opening night is on a Friday evening and the Art show remains open for 4 days.

The 2012 winning sculpture 'Waiting for Hay to Dry' set on a local green salt lake.

JS Roe's journey

There is a colourful mural depicting the journey of WA's first Surveyor-General, John Septimus Roe and signage regarding Kondinin from pre European settlement to modern day. The mural and signage are conveniently situated at the Travellers' Rest near the caravan park, mosaic and sculpture park and free barbeque facilities.

Yeerakine Rock

Yeerakine Rock is situated 12 kilometres out of town and is a spectacular lookout in a water catchment reserve. JS Roe made camp at the rock in 1848 during his first journey inland, due to the plentiful water and views afforded across the landscape.

A peaceful shady picnic area at the foot of the rock doubles as the start point for two walk trails through the abundant wildflowers.
